What is Carrow Road like?

The South Stand, which was opened in 2004, is an impressive looking single tier all seated stand that can hold up to 8,000 supporters. This stand was further extended in 2005 and now surrounds the corner of the ground where it joins the River End. Two-tiered stands house fans at each goal end, complete with a row of executive boxes and distinctive pairs of large floodlight pylons from their roofs. The first of these to be built was the River End (The Regency Security Stand) in 1979, with the Barclay End opposite which opened in 1992.

On the remaining side is the Geoffrey Watling City Stand. Named after a former club president and opened in 1986, this single tiered stand holds the Directors Box and Press Area and extends around to meet the ends at both corners, giving the ground an enclosed look on that side. In one corner in-between the Barclay End and South Stand, the stadium is overlooked by a sizeable Holiday Inn hotel and a revolving LED big screen.

Swans fans will be housed on one side of the South Stand with the normal allocation in this area for 2,500 supporters in what is recognised as one of the better away days. If you are located at the very back of this stand then you can enjoy some fine views across the city, including Norwich Cathedral. Sadly, the days of the club producing its own range of pies have long since gone instead you can enjoy the standard range of Pukka Pies, sausage rolls and rollover hot dogs.

Directions

The ground is well signposted from the A11 and A47. From the southern bypass (A47) take the A146 into the city. At the traffic lights turn right towards the city centre on the A1054. At the next roundabout stay in the left-hand lane and continue towards the city centre along the A147. At the next set of traffic lights, turn right into King Street. This street as it bends around to the right and crosses the river becomes Carrow Road, the ground is further down on the right.

Car Parking

Norfolk County Hall is one of the best car parks for away fans. It is well signposted on the left of the A146, as you follow signs towards the ground from the Southern Bypass. Last season it was £8 and can hold about 2000 cars. It is advisable to get to the car park before 1pm to secure a decent space as the car park fills up by 2pm.

There is also the option of renting a private driveway near Carrow Road via YourParkingSpace.co.uk.

After the game has ended some roads are closed to allow the crowd to disperse quickly and safely. For details of precisely which roads are closed, visit the Norwich City Council website.
